

A 100-acre tract of land on Nashville Pike was chosen for the new campus, and the property was deeded to the State on December 4, 1969. The new college was named Volunteer State Community College, and this was approved by the board on July 2, 1970. Groundbreaking ceremonies for the first four buildings were held on November 5, 1970. Pending completion and occupancy of the initial campus facilities in early 1972, temporary operations were in the Cordell Hull Hotel building in Gallatin. Utilizing the hotel and the educational facilities of several Gallatin churches, the College began instruction in the fall of 1971 with 581 students. In 1972, the General Assembly established the Tennessee Board of Regents as the governing board for the State University and Community College System at which time, the central control of the College transferred from the State Board of Education to the Regents System.

Volunteer State has experienced phenomenal growth in enrollment, curricula, staff, programs, public service, facilities, and quality into this 50th year of its operation. The main campus of Volunteer State now comprises 18 buildings, and the Volunteer State campuses at Livingston, Springfield, and Cookeville continue to grow in every aspect as well. Numerous off-campus operations extend the College's instruction and public service roles throughout its multi-county area.

Tennessee Board of Regents

Volunteer State Community College is one of thirteen community colleges and twenty-seven TN Colleges of Applied Technology (TCATs) in the Tennessee Board of Regents System (TBR). The TBR was established by the Tennessee General Assembly with a Board consisting of nineteen members, including the Governor.
